Corporate Social Responsibility

The concentration of entrepreneurs in the new dimensions is the essential factor of success. Now companies not only focus on the needs of their customers but also the needs of society and the environment. We must be good corporate citizens and give back to the communities we belong to.

We at BakeMate believe in being 'Good Corporate Citizens' which is evident from the fact that we have always had our focus on the sustainability of the environment and resources at large. We realize that our future success is dependent upon the future of the environment and the society to which we belong and in which we exist.

There are several ways in which we fulfill our responsibility and practice Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR):

- First, it is our commitment to continuously upgrade our processes, systems, products, and services by creating value for local communities, reducing the impact on the environment in which we operate, and enabling our employees and existing and potential customers to improve their living standards.
- Moreover, we are continually investing in and enriching our communities so that they reach their full potential. Thus we are heavily involved in projects that develop infrastructure, education, healthcare, water and sanitation, and social welfare programs for society.
- Last but not least, we also help culture and society flourish, by supporting charities, providing scholarships, treating needy patients, and donating for humanitarian reasons.
